Girls Are Kidnapped, Assaulted; One Missing

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., February 26.—(By the Associated Press.)—Search for six-year-old Lillian Gilmore, who with her five-year-old sister, Dorothy, was kidnapped from in front of her home Saturday, driven in an automobile to the outskirts of the city and assaulted, was continued today.

The police had orders to examine all vacant lots, houses, freight cars and any other place where the child or her body might be concealed. The Delaware river and nearby streams also were being drugged.

The condition of Dorothy who after having been put out of the motor car in an isolated section, made her way home and identified a suspect as the man who had carried her and her sister off, was reported today as improved.

Dorothy's story led the police to believe her sister was killed. She said the man first attacked Lillian, threw her body "on the ice" then drove farther and assaulted her. Lillian's body was covered with blood, and her eyes were closed, Dorothy said.

While Morgan, identified by Dorothy as the kidnapper, is wanted in Texas on a similar charge, the police say he was employed in a hat factory, is about 38 years old and is said to have come to this city from Maunabo, Blood stains have been found on Morgan's clothing and on the rear seat of his automobile, the police assert.

The children are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gilmore, who have no other children.

British Order Warships Withdrawn From Smyrna

LONDON, February 26.—(By the United Press.)—British warships were ordered today to withdraw from Smyrna harbor. The admiralty here accompanied the order with the explanation that the British thus seek to ease the situation at Angora, where militarists are clamoring for war. It is stated the British wish to help Mustafa Kemal to overcome the extremists.

Steel May Raise Wages

YOUNGSTOWN, O., February 26.—(By the Associated Press.)—Published reports originating in Pittsburgh of a possible wage increase by the United States Steel Corporation, received no confirmation here today. The reports said the corporation feared that the labor shortage already existing would become more serious when outside work begins in the spring.

L. Lamont Hughes, superintendent of the Youngstown district, of the Carnegie Steel Company, a corporation subsidiary, said today that he had heard nothing of a wage increase. Should the corporation raise wages the independent mills would be compelled to follow. A twenty percent increase in pay was granted in the steel industry early last autumn.

Throws Child Out Of Window And Jumps With The Other

NEW YORK, February 26.—(By the Associated Press.)—Holding her ten month old daughter in her arms, Mrs. John Healy, her clothes unfastened, stepped to a window of her burning third story apartment in a West Side tenement early today, flung one child to the street and jumped with the other.

The mother and the child she threw to the street, died. The other child was injured severely.

The firemen arrived after Mrs. Healy jumped and rescued her unconscious husband with ladders.

To Demand Anderson Be Indicted For Larceny

NEW YORK, February 26.—(By the Associated Press.)—Acting District Attorney Pecora announced this morning that he would go before the grand jury this afternoon with a request that William H. Anderson, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, be indicted on a charge of grand larceny.

Mr. Pecora said that the charge would be based on disposition made of $24,700 which Anderson asserts was used for publicity purposes.

Mr. Pecora said he had been forced to bring the case before the grand jury because of the refusal of Mr. Anderson to make any explanation of his expenditure.

Mr. Anderson, having refused to state immunity, will not appear before the grand jury. Subpoenas were served on the Rev. George Caleb Wood, secretary of the league; Bernard H. Fancher, treasurer; Miss Mary Hill, assistant treasurer; and Miss Maude M. O'Dell, assistant to Mr. Anderson.

A subpoena was left at the Marble Church for the Rev. Dr. David A. Barrett, of Madison, N. J., president of the league.

Yesterday Mr. Anderson, speaking from Albany pulpit, declared he was a victim of a "far-reaching conspiracy" in which Tammany and wet interest were involved. His charges that the conspirators were Bernard H. Fancher, legal representative of the Rockefeller family as a

Liquor Question Will Never Be Taken Out Of American Politics, Harding's View

(This is the last of a series of seven dispatches written after an exhaustive study of the prohibition question in which President Harding, Prohibition Commissioner Roy Haynes, Assistant Attorney General Wilhelm, Wayne B. Wheeler of the Anti-Saloon League, Capt. W. H. Stetten of the National Association Opposed to Prohibition and other leaders submitted to private interviews with the writer and gave their candid opinions on law enforcement and the outlook.)

option and temperance to absolute prohibition. He has voted "dry" right along but it cannot be said that he looks at prohibition from the narrow or inflexible viewpoint of a partisan. He recognizes the human side of the question and hence his opinions are without prejudice.

The president thinks America will never again see hard liquor legally sold.

He doesn't think a modification of existing law to permit beverages of between two and three per cent of alcohol is warranted.

On Trial For Murder

PAINEVILLE, O., February 26.—(By the Associated Press.)—The first degree murder trial of Henry D. Burns began here today. It originally was set for February 15, but was twice postponed because of illness in the family of Ralph C. Ostrander, lake county prosecutor.

Burns is alleged to have decapitated his wife, Hazel, to a lonely spot near Mentor, Ohio, in October, given her a brutal beating and then buried her alive in a shallow grave. He denies the charges.

Burns was arrested in Cleveland ten hours after the discovery of the body, since which time he has been in jail here.

Startling disclosures from developments of an analysis by chemists of blood stains on various articles to be introduced as evidence, are promised by Prosecutor Ostrander.

The jury is expected to be selected from forty-two takersmen summoned.

Mystery Shrouds The Slaying Of Aviator

"Look for the woman" is the motto adopted by the Los Angeles police in their efforts to solve the mysterious murder of Earle Remington, wealthy chieftain and war hero aviator, whose body was found in the back yard of his home, with two charges of buckshot through the heart. Remington, who was separated from his wife, is known to have had a dozen affairs of the heart with other women. He feared for his life, and on the very night he was killed had arranged to have a private detective guard him, but failed to meet the man who might thus have saved his life.

Packers Plan To Merge Despite Opposition Of Secretary Wallace

WASHINGTON, February 26.—(By the United Press.)—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace today took drastic steps to prevent the consummation of the merger of the big packing interests of Armour and Company and Morris and Company. Acting under the federal control law, the secretary served a formal complaint against the combination would be in violation of this law. Information received by the department of agriculture, Wallace stated, is that a tentative agreement for the merger already has been reached. The two packing companies would be given an opportunity to present their case in a hearing before the secretary of agriculture on April 2.

If upon the basis of evidence then submitted, the secretary is of the opinion that the combination is in violation of the packers' control act "an order to cease and desist from its consummation" will be entered. From this decision the packers may appeal to the federal circuit court of appeals in Chicago, and then the case may be taken to the supreme court of the United States. Expedition of the legal proceedings is provided for by the law and heavy penalties for violation may be imposed by the court.

The main basis of Secretary Wallace's complaint against the proposed combine is that it would lessen competition, particularly in the buying of livestock and thus would injure the American farmer whose rights the control law protects.

Wallace reveals that early in December he told J. Ogden Armour and E. Edson White, now president of Armour and Company, that the government would be compelled to act against the merger if plans for its consummation were continued. At that time Wallace urged that plans for the merger be dropped. Despite this, information received showed that plans for the combine were being continued and that recently Armour and Company by long distance telephone admitted that a tentative agreement for the merger had been reached.

MARION, O., February 26.—(By the Associated Press.)—With one man in a hospital at Marion, suffering from a broken hip and both legs fractured, and another in the Morrow county jail, Sheriff W. R. Corwin, of Morrow county, believes he has captured the bandits who attempted to hold up the First National Bank at Mount Pleasant on Saturday. Educators Hold Meet CLEVELAND, O., February 26.—(By the Associated Press.)—The annual convention of the department of superintendents of the national education association and a score of allied organizations opened here this morning with approximately 10,000 educators in attendance.

This morning's session was devoted to the general topic "Administering education in the interests of the children and the states."

A few of the outstanding questions upon which the men and women educators will concentrate their attention during the convention are:

How can schools be adequately financed in the face of increasing demands for education and the growing impotence of the tax payer?

What type of school building will best serve the needs of education most economically?

What should be the attitude of parents toward the schools?

How can rural schools be brought to the standards reached by city schools?

What studies should be taught—and why?

How can an adequate supply of teachers be obtained in competition with better paying professions?

Evangelist In Farewell

NEW YORK, February 26.—(By the Associated Press.)—Thea Crawford, former Salvation Army captain, who recently resigned from the army after her arrest in Times Square for conducting a religious meeting that obstructed traffic, intends to organize a band of young people to accompany her on her proposed evangelizing tour of the country.

More than a thousand of her friends and admirers gave her a farewell party last night in a theater at which she explained her plans.

"I feel it my duty to carry a message from God to the young people of our land," she said.

Will Rogers, the comedian, who introduced Miss Crawford, said she was the only person in New York he could introduce to his friends without an apology. He said he knew of bootleggers who after hearing her speak at open air meetings had cut their prices 25 a case.

Robbers Rifle Mail Trains

NEW YORK, February 26.—(By the Associated Press.)—Theft of thousands of dollars in registered mail from a New York Central train between Syracuse and Albany several days ago, was reported by authoritative sources today. The robbery, it was said, was similar to that in Grand Central Terminal yesterday. The robbers, it was said, evidently worked at leisure in the registered mail, rifling the packages and casting wrappers out the window. Later track walkers found wrappers strewn along the right of way, many of which, it was said, bore European addresses. The robbed train was east-bound.

The similarity of this robbery and the one yesterday in the Grand Central Terminal when the Chicago fast mail train, composed of ten steel cars, was robbed, led to the belief that both were committed by the same ring of bandits.

Federal officials declared they believed the thefts were the work of a band of mail thieves organized in Chicago and that they expected to make arrests within a short time.

May Lose Citizenship

WASHINGTON, February 26.—(By the United Press.)—Secretary of Labor Davis is taking action to have the American citizenship of Isadora Duncan, widely known dancer, annulled in view of her alleged disparaging comment on America and the American people. Davis said today that he asked the solicitor to get an opinion from the attorney general on the possibility of taking away her citizenship rights.

Miss Duncan has renounced America in some of her recent announcements, Davis said.

PARIS, February 26.—(By the United Press.)—The French today said "hands off the Ruhr" to all nations considering mediation and proceeded with acquisition of further territory and lively "strafing" of numerous German towns. A semi-official announcement said France would not accept intervention, either by Britain, Holland or the United States.

Flight Is Postponed

DAYTON, O., February 26.—(By the Associated Press.)—Weather conditions today and forecast for the next 24 hours necessitated the postponement of the proposed flight of Lieutenant John A. MacReady and Oakley G. Kelly, in an attempt to establish a new record for sustained flight.

Rain this morning and freezing above the clouds with forecast for rain and colder weather, caused the aviators to call off their flight which was to have been made at 8:00 o'clock this morning.

Weather tomorrow and forecast for Wednesday will determine whether the fliers will take the air tomorrow or not.

French Seize More Ground; Bochum Put Under Seige

DUESSELDORF, February 26.—(By the Associated Press.)—The French today were in possession of the strip of territory between the Cologne and Coblenz and the Coblenz and Mayence bridgeheads, thereby securing railway lines that have heretofore been in unoccupied territory. The occupation was planned to strengthen the Rhineland customs control. Between twelve and fifteen thousand civilian workers from France and Belgium are awaiting the order that will put them at work on the railway line throughout the Ruhr and Rhineland.

German employers are to be offered their former jobs with the understanding that if they refuse to return to work they will be expelled. The disciplining of the city of Bochum for its attitude toward the occupation has been featured by wholesale arrests as well as by the virtue of declaration of a state of siege. The French showed their strength by bringing tanks and machine guns to the heart of the town and then issued an order forbidding residents to appear on the streets after nine o'clock in the evening. Most of the persons arrested have been released.

Probing Smuggling

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(By Associated Press.)—Immigration authorities have begun an extensive survey of industrial areas in New Jersey and Northeastern Pennsylvania. Secretary Davis announced today to determine how many aliens have been smuggled into the United States in violation of the seaman's act.

Warrants ordering deportation from the United States of 198 individuals already have been issued.

Policeman Stole Bumper

WASHINGTON, February 26.—(By the Associated Press.)—Shot through the head by a fellow officer after a wild automobile chase through the heart of the city, which began when he is alleged to have stolen a bumper from a confiscated bootlegger's car in front of a police station, Fred G. Stang, 40 year old member of the Washington police force, is in a hospital today in a dying condition.

Detective Thomas O'Donnell, who gave chase and shot Stang, testified at a hearing that he saw Stang and Ruby Downs, another policeman, take the bumper from the car late yesterday and put it in their own machine and drive off. Downs has been suspended from the force and is held on a charge of larceny.

“The Storm” At Sun Theatre Tonight

Storm signals are put for all this week at the Sun Theatre, when “The Storm” will be played by the Jack Ball players, starting tonight.

“The Storm” is a production of the Broadhurst production of the back woods, entitled “The Storm” New York didn't seem to be able to get enough of this splendid melodrama—which is certainly entitled to the title of the longest storm on record, running for one year at the Long Acre Theatre.

No words get devised would be adequate in describing the forest fire scene of act three. This scene alone represents thousands of dollars worth of mechanical effects and the very last words in stage realism. You see the slow moving red clouds of the forest fire approaching for miles away, coming closer and closer until at the climax of the act everything is a mass of flames. Huge forest oaks burning, one falling, crashing down through the cabin, where lives Burr Winton, David Stewart and Little Manette. It's some realistic stuff and unless you see this big treat you are passing up one of the most thrilling plays ever seen on a local stage. But do not think that the effects are alone the big thing, for the story is an absorbing one, filled with big dramatic moments, a vein of clever comedy and touches of pathos. Seats are selling now for all performingances this week. The Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday matinees are reserved on the lower floor. There is a moneyback guarantee given with every ticket. If you don't like the play, The Jack Ball management is to be congratulated on giving the people of this city such big amusement values.

Every spoonful of Kellogg's Bran helps free you from toxic poisons!

Constipation is largely responsible for auto-intoxication that leads to dangerous diseases unless it is not only checked but permanently relieved. Constipation, in fact, is the basis of a majority of human ailments which could be headed off if people would only help rid themselves of this serious, health-undermining condition, which can be easily done.

Constipation must be fought to a finish—not with pills and cathartics, which are dangerous to the delicate membranes of the intestines and temporary at best—but with nature's greatest cereal health food—Bran—Kellogg's Bran, which is as delicious as it is beneficial.

Kellogg's Bran is wonderful in its work because it is ALL BRAN. And, to get permanent relief, ALL BRAN is a necessity, for it is the “bulk” of Kellogg's Bran that sweeps and purifies, ridding the system of poisons and bringing conditions to normal. Eat Kellogg's Bran regularly—at least two tablespoonfuls daily—as much with each meal in chronic cases—and you guarantee that you will get relief permanently and naturally.

Kellogg's Bran is delicious. You do not have to learn to like it. Eat it as a cereal or sprinkle on or mix with hot or cold cereals. Or, cook it with hot cereals, allowing two tablespoonfuls for each person. Kellogg's Bran makes wonderful muffins, griddle cakes, raisin bread, macaroons, etc. Recipes on package.

Leading hotels, clubs and restaurants serve Kellogg's Bran in individual packages. All grocers.

Trend Of Senate View On Harding's Request Expected From Groups

WASHINGTON, February 26.—(By the Associated Press)—More definite indication of the reaction of various groups to the administration's sudden request for authority for the country's participation in the international court of justice, organized under the League of Nations, was noted for today on the eve of the foreign relations committee meeting to consider the matter. Meanwhile indications increased that the senate probably would not be prepared even to initiate action on the proposal during the week remaining before adjournment and that it would go over until the December session.

While pending the committee meeting, the irreconcilable and reservationists groups in the senate generally were withholding open expressions of dissent, already an attitude of suspicion, and in some instances, hostility to the administration request was evident among the former faction.

It appeared to face as bitter opposition from that quarter as the League of Nations itself did. Indications of like warmness among administration leaders, largely belonging to the reservationist group in the league fight also were seen in some quarters in their failure to come forward with immediate expressions of approval.

Among league proponents on the Democratic side, however, there has been general endorsement of the aim sought in the administration program, particularly among the so-called "Wilson group." Even this endorsement, though, has been coupled with reservations as to details.

Banks' Resources Gain

COLUMBIA, O., February 26.—
(By the Associated Press)—Resources of banks subject to state supervision, increased materially between the ends of December 31, 1921, and December, 1922, said a statement today by H. C. Scott, state superintendent of banks.

Cleveland continued to maintain its preeminence as a financial center in Ohio. It reported resources of $711,200,000, an increase of almost $17,000,000. Nearly one-half of all state bank resources is in Cleveland financial institutions.

Cincinnati showed an increase of $12,000,000; Toledo, $18,000,000; Albion, nearly $2,000,000; Canton, $9,000,000; Columbus, $8,000,000;
Youngstown and Dayton, $2,000,000.

Liquor

Question

abolition content would do away with illicit traffic in whiskey. The craving of some people for hard liquor, good or bad, will never be satisfied by lighter beverages.

The President believes certain of the large cities will take longer to subside than the rest of the country and that liquor will continue to be sold in violation of the law in such places for some time to come, in fact until some shocking scandal, some poisoning of large number of citizens through bad liquor awakens the communities to their sense of responsibility for law enforcement.

Mr. Harding doesn't think the liquor question will ever be taken out of American politics. He once thought it would. He has found that even with an amendment to the federal constitution, the subject is still political and bores its way into campaigns for municipal, state and federal offices irrespective of party.

The conception of duty which Mr.
Harding holds with respect to law enforcement is gradually being understood by subordinate officials. Roy Haynes, prohibition Commissioner, is a man of absolute integrity. Political pull would get about as far with him as the Anti-Saloon League itself if it ever came to a question of enforcing the law against the friends of political leaders or even officials. President Harding stands back of Commissioner Haynes and the latter pursues his task with all the enthusiasm of a Wayne Wheeler.

Indeed, prohibition enforcement which at first was looked upon as a half-hearted affair is beginning to be taken seriously. Mr. Haynes has wreathed out as much corruption among his agents as he could in the last year and knows there's more to be accomplished in that direction but he also has learned more about handling a mobile force of men who can descend upon a locality, study its problem, make raids and arrests and depart to another community while another mobile force of agents arrives to continue the work. Success has attended this policy and it will be kept up. Expert investigators are being developed and where there is the right kind of cooperation between state and federal forces the clean-up will come sooner than most people expect.

Public sentiment, of course, is the main obstacle in some states while in others it is the bulwark of law enforcement. The campaign of education will be kept up for the next several years in the hope that the business and professional men will gradually cease to encourage illicit sale and recognize their obligation to uphold the structure of law and the Constitution. Wherever the speakers of the Anti-Saloon League as well as the government go, they address their appeals to the upper classes in the community—the poor man who was deprived of his beer is believed to have adjusted himself to the situation while the richer citizen with his cellar supply being depleted is beginning to deal more extensively with the

"bootleggers."

It is a violation of the law to buy

from a bootlegger, a violation of law to have liquor in one's possession which one didn't have prior to January, 1920. How long will the law continue to be disregarded? Anti-Saloon speakers by the hundreds are filling the churches every Sunday and appealing to public sentiment. They no longer argue whether prohibition is a good thing or a bad thing but that anarchy and bolshevism will result if the majesty of the law isn't upheld.

Prosecutions are being carried on relentlessly. Plenty of funds are available for the purpose. The states are being brought into closer cooperation with the federal government every day. President Harding has not made an empty gesture in his call for a conference of governors.

He plans to acquaint them with the main tasks that lie ahead and he has received assurances in person from practically all of the governors that they will follow the lead of the federal government.

The experiment in Pennsylvania is being watched with particular interest by President Harding and the entire prohibition force of the government. Pennsylvania is densely populated. Governor Pinchot has asked the legislature to pass drastic enforcement laws. They may become models for other states to copy. Governor Pinchot has had placed at his disposal all the information and experience of the federal government in fighting violators of the Volstead law. Prohibition Commissioner

Haynes makes frequent trips to Pennsylvania and speaks to business and trade bodies and other important gatherings there.

Pennsylvania is so close to New York and New Jersey that what happens in the Keystone state is bound to become known across the Delaware river in short order. If Pennsylvania can be made dry, the skepticism of some of the people in the other so-called "wet" states will not last long.

That's the reasoning of the prohibitionists who are making their hardest drive in Pennsylvania with the state and federal machinery at their disposal.

And speaking of skeptics, there is a significant lesson to be learned about the power of the federal government, when it is once exerted, and that lesson concerns the traffic in dope.

If "bootleggers" are hard to catch,

then dope peddlers are doubly difficult to apprehend. They operate even more clandestinely and with a skill-fulness born of years of furtive experience. And what has been the record of the federal government recently? The statistics show an increase in 1922 of sixty-five per cent in the number of arrests and a 100 per cent increase in the number of convictions.

Some people have endeavored to show that the dope traffic has been stimulated by prohibition of the sale of intoxicating liquors. Government officials say this is absurd. They argue that the number of addicts hasn't increased very much but that the prosecutions have been more vigorous because at last Congress has appropriated enough money to enforce the law against peddlers of narcotics. There is a feeling also that the publicity which some newspapers have given to the dope question to some extent the users of dope because of the inevitable effect of lurid stories on the imagination of weak-minded people. Government officials think there has been altogether too much said in print about dope and that more harm than good is done by the argument that pointing the evils is a preventative. They think it works the other way and tempts

many who would otherwise never hear about drugs.

Estimates have been printed from time to time that the number of drug users run from 750,000 to 3,000,000.

Mr. Haynes, the prohibition commissioner who also enforces the law on narcotics, says his experts believe there are not more than 750,000 to 750,000 in the whole United States.

There are two classes—the criminal who must be taken care of by institutions and the business and professional class who must be cared for by physicians, relatives and friends.

The courts are beginning to deal severely with dope peddlers. Sentences have been as high as twenty years per individual. Limitations of production of dope is another legislative policy which is expected to help the drug situation.

The craving for drugs and for liquor is held to be separate and distinct. Officials in the Department of Justice say they cannot accept the theory that prohibition has increased the number of drug addicts because liquor has not been so scarce in the last two years that a man with a desperate thirst couldn't find a

"bootlegger" somewhere or even make some of it if he needed it.

It has taken seven years to make the government enforcement machinery efficient in handling the drug traffic. Many prohibition officials think it will take seven years to handle the liquor problem as well.

Prohibition Commissioner Haynes

thinks the peak of "bootlegging" has been reached and that in ten years America will be relatively dry. That is violations of the liquor laws will be reduced to the same level as violations of other laws such as thievery, assault and fraud.

Confessions of the ringleaders in "bootleg" operations are already helping the government. By turning state's evidence to save their own skins, some criminals have implicated others. The government is constantly after the "bootlegger higher up."

Once he is spotted the little fellow will be unable to get a regular supply.
The increasing dangers of "bootlegging," the chances of blackmail, the hazards taken in attempting to bribe officials who may at any moment be tried, the profit worth the risk, especially if good liquor becomes scarce and the public gets fearful of diluted or poisoned whiskey, this cutting down the volume of purchases.

America will get drier and drier if the next administration follows in the footsteps of the present administration for a system of prosecution and enforcement is being built up which is bound to get results especially as the states lead their cooperation.

What ever one thinks about the merits of prohibition or about the wisdom or expediency of the laws on the subject, whatever one may hope for in the way of modification

the pleasant or unpleasant truth is the area of the law is drawing closer and closer and with the assistance of a changing public sentiment in many communities is making substantial progress.

Passage of a prohibition amendment to the federal constitution looked impossible to thousands in wet states. But it came. Enforcement looks similarly impossible to many of the same people. But it too, is coming. Whether the extinction of the whiskey traffic will hasten the day of wines and beer can only be conjectured. The "wets" or "liberals," as they like to call themselves, think absolute prohibition will bring back a light beverage for table use. The "drys" are convinced that once the law is enforced the moral and economic benefits will become so deeply impressed on the public mind that the majority will never wish to turn back and that even Europe, not from a sentimental viewpoint, but from stern economic necessity in order to compete with dry America, may some day be compelled to do what the war taught many nations, namely that a restriction of the liquor traffic increases efficiency.

This is a dry era in government.
Few people in it expect change for some time to come. The dominant thought is that America will get drier year by year. With that objective in mind the effort to enforce the law grows gradually more sincere and effective at least on the part of those who are charged with the specific responsibility for the job of making America dry.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
SIR NORMAN GREYES, formerly of Scotland Yard, joins the chase of MICHAEL SAYERS, famous criminal. Sayers, masquerading as Thomas Pugsley, broker, is recognized by Greyes who send a police inspector to accost Sayers on the street. Sayers shoots the inspector and escapes.

Known at the golf club as James Stanfield and suitably disguised, Michael is introduced to Sir Norman. Janet Soble, maid in the home of Sayers, is secretly in love with her master. Detecting a policeman following Michael, Janet shoots the officer through the forehead, killing him instantly. Greyes and Sayers find the body. Both recognize the man. Greyes becomes suspicious that James Stanfield is in reality Michael Sayers, the master criminal.

NOW GO ON WITH STORY
Michael Continues
"I SHALL be only too pleased," I told him. "My staff is rather limited, as I am only here occasionally. My gardener is out for the afternoon, so there only remains my maid servant."

I LED the way into the house. Janet was busy in the kitchen, but came at once to our summons. As usual, she was wonderfully neat, and her manner, although reserved, was perfectly open.

"We want to know," my companion asked, "whether there have been any callers at the house this afternoon?"

"None, sir," she replied. "except the boy with the chicken. I ordered for the master's dinner."

"Have you seen anyone about the place?"

"No one, sir."

"Did you hear anything which might have been the report of a pistol?"

"Nothing at all, sir."

"Have you been outside the house yourself?"

The girl shook her head.

"I have had no occasion to go out, sir," she replied. "I have been busy in the kitchen."

Greyes nodded, and dismissed her after a few more unimportant questions. Soon a police inspector arrived, and the doctor. I let them visit the scene of the crime alone. As soon as they had gone, I went upstairs. I looked in my tie-drawer for the small revolver. It was not there. I looked in the bottom drawer, which I had left locked, for the clothes which I had worn when I had made my escape. The drawer had been forced open, and the clothes, too, had disappeared. Then I realized that I was faced with a problem. Someone had penetrated my defense. I had been—I probably still was—in danger. I went down to the study and summoned Janet once more to my presence. When she arrived I took my seat between her and the door. I made her face the window. Down in the shrubbery the police inspector was still talking to Greyes.

"Do you know anything about this affair which you did not tell Sir Norman Greyes?" I asked her.

"Yes, sir," she replied.

I looked at her thoughtfully. She was very straight and shapely in the gray twilight. Her eyes met mine without flinching. I have been an indifferent student of women's looks, but I realized then that they were a very beautiful though rather a cold color, greeny-brown of a light shade, with delicate lashes and finely cut eyebrows. There was a passionate curve to her lips which I had never before noticed. Her hair was brown and lustrous.

"You had better tell me everything, Janet," I enjoined.

"Soon after you had gone out," she said, "the man who lies in the tool-house came here and asked me questions about you. He made his way into your bedroom. He was anxious to see the clothes in which you had traveled down. He opened the bottom drawer of your wardrobe and found them."

"There was a revolver in the top drawer," I remarked.

"I had discovered that and hidden it," she replied.

"And after he had found my clothes?"

"He went down to the shrubbery to wait for you."

"Did he say what he wanted?"

"He had told me that he was an officer of the police."

"And then?"

"I went down the other path, and I made my way across the spongy turf to where he was standing. When I was so near that there was no chance of missing him, I shot him."

I am a man to whom courage is second nature, and I have seen death trifled with, and trifled with myself, like the juggler with his ball, but I have never heard it spoken of with more indifference. Outside, the figures of the detective and his companion were still visible in the little wood. The body of the dead man was only a few yards away. I leaned forward and I looked at the girl, striving to get past the almost cynical impenetrability of her speech.

"Why did you do this, Janet?" I asked.

"He did what no man in the world has ever dared to do before, sir," she replied. "He kissed me—upon the lips! I wonder that I did not kill him where he stood!"

"Had you no other reason than that, Janet?" I persisted.

"I wished to save you, sir," she answered.

"To save me from what?"

"From the law."

"You think that I was in danger?"

"I know that you were."

"Who or what do you think I am?"

"A great criminal," she answered.

I was staggered, for it was plain to me now that I must have been at this girl's mercy many a time. She went on slowly.

"I have always believed," she continued, "that you were leading a double life. The few visitors you have had have come at night, and secretly. Whenever you have arrived here, and Mr. Stanfield has recommended to play golf, there has been a tragedy or a great robbery reported in the newspapers on the following morning. I always felt that some day or other this would happen. Now that it has come, I am glad."

"You realize that you killed a man in cold blood? I persisted, determined to try her to the limit."

"I am glad that I have," she replied.

"For a domestic servant," I said, "you have a wonderful sense of your obligations."

"You need not scoff at me," she complained. "I am a woman, a dangerous woman, but a clever one. I was not brought up to be a servant. I am fit to be your companion. That is my hope."

"I have never trusted a woman in my life," I told her.

"You will trust me," she declared in a low tone. "You will remember what I have done for you today. I am the woman who has made to complete your life. You had better realize it and make use of me. You will not regret it."

She came a little closer to me, and though women have never been more than the toys of my idle moments, I felt the passion of her strike into my heart. My senses were aflame. I saw life differently. Her voice became softer and more silken. She was like some beautiful animal. Her eyes were appealing, but intemperate.

"You shall marry me," she continued. "I have a fancy about that, and I insist. Then think of the benefit. If disaster should come, I shall never be able to give evidence against you. But there will be no disaster. I know how clever you are. I too have brains. Say that this means something to you. I have given proof of my devotion. Repay me."

"I took her into my arms. There was a savage fire in her kiss which warmed my blood, a fierce delight in her strange-colored eyes which amazed while it enthralled me. This modern Borgia seemed to have fastened herself on to my life. The figures of the men in the little wood grew more shadowy."

"Where is the pistol?" I whispered, holding her away from me for a moment.

"Where no one will ever find it," she answered.

"And the clothes?"

"Burned. I run no risks when your safety is in question."

The searchers came back to the house half an hour or so later. I was busy rebinding the handle of my putter. Janet was in the kitchen, preparing my dinner. Greyes accepted a whisky and soda. He looked tired and a little dejected.

"Any luck?" I asked him under my breath, as he prepared to take his leave.

He shook his head.

"So far as circumstantial evidence is concerned," he admitted, "I am afraid we shall be in a bad way. A

He stopped short, swallowed a little sob in his throat, and turned away.

"I hope that you will give me another game of golf some day, Mr. Stanfield," he said, as he prepared to take his leave.

"With great pleasure," I assented.

Sir Norman's Decision

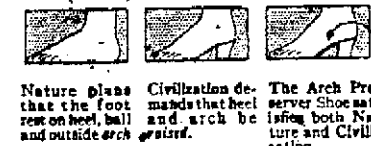

YESTERDAY the inquest on poor Richard Ladbroke, after having been twice adjourned, resulted in a verdict of murder against some person or persons unknown.

The verdict itself is a terrible reflection upon our present criminal methods. It pulls at the strings of my conscience with sickening intensity. Ladbroke had found a clew which he confided to no one. He had traveled down to Woking in search of the missing man Pugsley—or Michael Sayers, as I believe him to have been. He must have been murdered there, either by Pugsley himself or some confederate; yet not one of us has been able to lay our hands upon a single shred of evidence. I have been unable to tear myself away from the place. I have had several games of golf with Mr. Stanfield, and I have dined with him once at his house—a very excellent dinner and wonderfully cooked. He is desirous of offering a small reward for the apprehension of the murderer, but at present I have not encouraged him. I do not want a crowd of people stirring up the waters. I have not said as much to anyone—not even to him; but I am making it the object of my life to lay my hands upon the so-called Thomas Pugsley.

The day I find him, the mystery of Ladbroke's murder will be solved. And I shall find him!

"The Kiss of Judas," second story of this remarkable series, will begin in our next issue.

friends, that he likes me, and has asked me to marry him. My parents want me to finish school first, but I am not interested in my studies. I am a junior in High school. What do you think I should do?

UNDECIDED. You cannot get married until you are eighteen without your parents' consent, so you might as well get an education while the getting is good. If the man cares anything for you he will be willing to postpone your wedding date for a year or two, as you are entirely too young to assume the responsibilities of a wife. The average girl of your age imagines herself in love with every boy and man who speaks to her, and I think if you will wait a year or two you can't see the man you are going with at all.

Dear Dolly—I am a girl of 17 and have been going with a boy of 21 for more than a year. I see him at least three times a week and talk to him every day. If I do not meet him on the street he calls me up on the phone after working hours. I like this man and do not keep company with anyone else. He has told his

Dear Dolly—One evening I was coming from the store and I dropped my handkerchief, and a young man came along and picked it up for me. Now, Dolly, I liked this man, and as I thanked him he gave me a very pleasant smile. Do you think he likes me?

I don't suppose the man has ever given you a second thought. The chances are he would not recognize you again if he met you. He did not do any more for you than anyone else would have done and you should not take such little everyday courtesies seriously. And for the love of Pete, don't think that every man who looks at you, smiles at you, or even waits upon you, is in love with you. If you do, I feel sorry for you.

Dear Dolly—Are there any premiums given on coins dated 1863?

TIME READER. I know of no premium other than their face value.

Dear Dolly—What do you think of a woman who has had trouble in her own home over a certain party who will stop another woman's husband on the street, and tell him tales that will cause him to go home and mistreat his wife? TIMES READER.

If that husband was worth a cent, he would not listen to tales about his wife. He would have told that woman who started to gossip about her, where to go and what to do. A husband who will listen to gossip about his wife and believe it, without waiting to get her side of the case, is a mighty poor sort of a hubner. As for the woman in the case, I think she should be at home "sweeping in front of her own door," as the saying goes.

Dear Dolly—Will you kindly tell me how to clean a velvet dress?

KATHERINE. If the dress is worth anything, I would advise you to send it to a professional cleaner. You may be able to clean it yourself if it is only slightly soiled, by brushing it good with a whisk broom and then steaming it on the wrong side. When the pile is pressed down, cover a hot iron with a wet cloth and hold the velvet firmly over it; the vapor arising will raise the pile of the velvet with the assistance of a light whisk.

A Worried Lover—You can't blame the girl for the way things turned out, as she did not know when she started going with you that you ever intended to "pop the question," and she did not feel it necessary to tell you anything of the past. I see no reason why she should tell every man who speaks to her, her life's history, and in your case it would not have been necessary to tell you if you had not asked her to marry you. As you say, she probably thought some other busy body had told you, and that you knew everything, and did not see fit to mention it to her. I think the girl is all right now, and would make you a good wife, if you have no objections to marrying her under the circumstances. However, unless you can make up your mind to forget the past, and never mention it in the future, don't marry the girl.

Adventures Of The Twins

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

A most amazing thing happened. Nancy and Nick crossed the wide, wide river safely and thought that all they had to do was walk right up to King Jack Straw's palace (who wasn't king at all), push open the door (made of a double five domino) and put him out.

Then Mix-Up Land would turn back into Apple-Pie Land as it used to be, and King Even-Steven, the real king, wouldn't have to go round with rags over his velvet clothes, like a beggar.

That's what the twins thought. But it wasn't what happened. Here's what happened.

The domino house made a big jump and landed on top of a steep and stuck there and no one could get at it.

"Now look!" cried Nancy, pointing at the strange sight. "All our trouble for nothing!"

"I should say so," declared Nick, stamping his feet. "That rogue, Jack Straw, must have turned the magic ring on his left thumb again."

"That's just what happened," said a voice. "I saw him do it. And he gave it an extra turn for good luck."

Nancy looked and Nick looked and they both looked. It was a rabbit who was talking—a rabbit with one ear up and one ear down. He went calmly on with his nibbling when the Twins looked at him. He was nibbling green roses off a pink rose bush.

"Who are you, sir?" asked Nick. "and how do you know so much?"

"I'm called One-Up-and-One-Down," said the rabbit, "and I know what I know. It's a devil secret and I'm not allowed to tell, but I'll tell you. That's what secrets are for. Just to tell. I know so much because I'm not a rabbit at all. I'm a person, a really magnificent person, or I was. I was King Even-Steven's cook. I was changed to a rabbit when Apple-Pie Land was changed to Mix-Up Land. I used to bake the apple pies."

"Oh, we'd like to help you," said kind Nancy.

JACK DAW'S ADVENTURES

When Jack took his dog's part it pleased the stranger, "I see that you are very kind to your dog," he said. "I like little boys who treat dumb animals right, and to show you that I mean it, I am going to buy you all the balloons you want." Then he put his hand in his pocket to get some money.

"Now," continued the stranger, "how would you like to have all of the balloons that this balloon man has?" "Oh, fine," shouted Jack. "All right," said the man, "here's the money, and you take the balloons." The balloon man was very pleased and he handed the balloons to Jack. Then came a big surprise.

As Jack took hold of the group of balloons they started carrying him up in the air. He hardly had time to know what was going on before he was left the ground. It seemed like great fun to Jack. Then Flip made a jump and caught his master's coat tail, and he, too, was carried away. (Continued.)

Tabernacle Packed At Sunday Meetings; Big Revival In Full Swing

Evangelist Anderson Stirs Audiences With Messages; No Services This Evening

(By A. P. Haight)

The greatest meeting of the whole crusade thus far was Sunday evening.

With the promptness of an alarm clock that calls the sleepy worker from his dreams, the song leader was at his post and asking the big chorus three hundred and more to follow his direction in the great song service. It was a problem for the ushers to find room for the folks who came. Three thousand or more were jammed into the tabernacle room when Dr. Anderson brought his ringing message last night on "The Love Slave."

It was a different type of sermon from his afternoon message but filled to the brim with keen, clear-cut logic and flashing forth messages that sank deep into the biggest crowd that has yet gathered here.

The address was founded on the incident of slavery as practiced in the early history of the Jewish nation. Drawing from this story his comparisons that fit in with the practice of Christian living, he touched on many things that make for the betterment of human society and the upbuilding of the church and community life.

Going after the conservative, the standpatter, with hammer and tongs he gave to those fellows who are in the "rut" some things to think about, and adding to this every reason why they should go forward instead of standing "put."

"And I do not believe in fanaticism," he said, "and there will be some of it in this crusade, but I do believe that if a fellow feels like shouting he ought to shout. But I think that a man ought not to shout so loudly on Sunday that he does not have enough strength left to keep the commandments the rest of the week. Blow your whistle if you have enough strength, but be sure you have enough left to keep going."

Those with many others remarks of the evangelist gave his auditors food for thought that will carry them through Monday and will bring them back Tuesday evening with renewed zeal to learn more.

The services of Sunday surely show a remarkable interest in the crusade and with the momentum thus gained the big tabernacle will likely be taxed during the rest of the meetings.

The young folks held their meeting at the First Baptist church at 6:30. More than 125 young folk worshipped there and were joined by others going in a body to the tabernacle being met 150 or more when they arrived.

Next Sunday evening they will gather at the same place at the same hour and the young people of First Christian church will have charge. The topic will be "Factors That Make Our Community Better—How Can We Help?" All young people of the city are invited.

Sunday evening was a great evening for those who are anxious to get from the regular ledger, choir and pianist, Mr. Hall and Mr. Mack of the Hall-Mack Music Co., of Philadelphia were present. Mr. Hall and Mr. Jenkins sang. Another visitor, Mrs. Ida Cole Prentiss of Lancaster, Pa., who is visiting her father, Spencer Cole, was present and sang. For fine talent in song and speech it would be hard to find a place more greatly blessed than the big tabernacle.

Sunday evening's sermon follows:

LOVE SLAVES.—And his master shall love his slave as himself, and he shall serve him forever. (Exodus 21:6.)

In the early history of the Jewish race slavery was not only permitted but seemed to be a necessity; but the slavery of Israel was such as was found in no other land or among no other people. It was not degrading, but reformatory and was intended to lift the slave out of his lowly and unrighteous life and to give him a new number of those enslaved were people who had been dishonest and contracted debts which they were unable to pay. Even the small number of slaves who had been taken in their wars were not allowed to be bound and driven to menial service of hirelings. They were denied the privileges of the sanctuary, but possessed the same rights and privileges of their masters. Unlike the slaves of other nations, they could not be kept in perpetual servitude. But every seventh year was known as a year of jubilee, in which all the male slaves were made free.

It was a system intended to protect men from the imposition of impiety and dishonest persons. If a man became too deeply indebted to his neighbor, he was compelled to enter that man's service and work out the debt, receiving at the year of jubilee as much as he had when he went into the service, but nothing more. If he were married, he could take with him his wife and children as well dressed as when they went into slavery. If he were a single man he could take with him whatever had been his when he entered the service. But, during the seven years of service, he had no right to marry. If he married, some other slave, when the year of jubilee arrived, he would not be permitted to take his wife and children, for the law allowed none of the female slaves to be thus liberated. The woman had been committed to slavery for other reasons, and in order to prevent wrongs that might arise they were not allowed to be licitly thrown upon the world as were the men.

Now it often happened that when a year of jubilee arrived some young man who had married in slavery so loved his wife and children that he would not consent to be set free, but would remain in slavery, and love his wife and children more than he loved his liberty, therefore he took to remain with you. Then the priest would come from the temple, take the young man who had made himself an offering of love, would place his hand against the door and pierce his ear through with an awl. From there he would go back to his old tasks, but he was no longer upon his check. Re-

Sparks From The Anvil Of George Wood Anderson

Shu empties a man's life of all the things that are worth while, and makes him shallow.

God has always provided for the protection of the women.

Our standards of social life have been materially lowered.

The world ought to feel the heart throbs of a man who is every inch a man.

A man is of value only as he is able to love and to love deeply.

Love makes the home, and the town. When a man knocks his town, he is no good to it.

The men who love their cities have great cities.

Love is no good without it is expressed. If a man loves his town he will express that love in action for his town.

Electrons are expensive but they give us a chance to express ourselves and therefore are worth all they cost.

You cannot serve the devil without feeling the mark of his lash upon your soul.

In an effort to express their feelings on a national political issue, and there is nothing wrong in it. But what makes me sick is that men burn out their lives to make big business a success and throw all reserve and dignity to the wind for the sake of a political issue and then act like a jump of gutterspinner when it comes to the biggest business in the world, the making of the man who is God's plan, instead of giving it over to the devil in hell.

I believe in political campaigns. On my first visit to England I was riding from Oxford to London in a compartment with some business men who were kindly pointing out the passing places of interest that my trip might be of the greatest possible profit. When I looked upon the tall gray walls of Windsor Castle I made this superficial remark: "Do you not find it rather expensive keeping such fine castles for one family to enjoy?" "O, no," was the reply. "Our cost is not greater than your expense of a political campaign every four years." It was a just answer but I am just too foolish to prefer an election every four years to the continued rule of one family. And besides the money is well spent for our elections give the American people an opportunity to give expression to their deep feelings. A man is always a stronger man for having the world know that he loves his country and that its welfare is uppermost in his heart.

Business men who would not keep a clerk in their employ who did not grow enthusiastic in promoting their business, put the screws tight on their pastor if he shows any warm blood. I wouldn't give a nickel for the religion of a business man who does not show as much concern for Jesus Christ as he does for his fortune. Something must be done to save some of the men from the grip of the money making machine. The church is a cold storage plant to preserve their dignity. The Lord knows that that is all they have got, and when that fails them at the Judgment bar of God there will be precious little left to cast into hell.

If a man loves God why should he not say so, and say it in such a way that sinners have their hearts stirred and want to find God too.

Conservatism or Dry Rot.

Conservatism is no valid excuse for when you speak of conservatism in religion you generally mean dry rot or petrification. Conservatism has never written a book worth reading, has never made a discovery or perfected an invention. The only thing it has ever done is to put a preacher in a refrigerator and then cuss him because he doesn't sweat. A religious conservative is like a mummy in that it reveals how long a useless thing can hang around after it ceases to function actually.

The Gospel of Jesus Christ is world-conquering in its power and will capture all nations as soon as it is intelligently interpreted. Men who do not clothe the Master in the white robe of spotless unadorned holiness. Men who clothe Him in other garments confuse Him with other leaders and thus lose the secret of His power. Those who see Him only in dust-stained garments speak of Him as a workman of social service.

He got Him confused with the hen-fatherly speaking of Constantine, Florence, Nightingale, Lombard, Jesus and Francis Assisi. When men clothe Him in the robes of the scholar they group Him with the teachers and philosophers, glibly speaking of Brahmin, Confucius, Plato, Jesus and Aristotle. I have heard ministers who clothed Him in east-of-robust robes like His death to the death of Socrates and Savonarola.

These do not represent Christ's place in the world. He is one of the lowliest laborers for the world's betterment. He is the one who lived and died, not for the world's betterment but for the world's salvation. He is not to be numbered among the world's benefactors. He stands alone, the matchless Son of God, the Savior of the world, and the secret of His power is His perfect holiness.

My one hope of life, is the white light of His purity. If I follow Him as a man in dusty garments then my only standard of measurement is holiness, and measuring myself by my fellowman and listening to the words of praise from those whom I have helped, I become self-satisfied. No one dares to measure his life in terms of praise or exultation for that breeds self-satisfaction and that makes growth impossible. I am interested in some benevolence. I ask some member of the church to assist me. He refuses, so I say, "I'm a better man than he," which may be true, but I'm not saying much. Soon I begin to think myself better than others, and there I do not see any need for the church or Christian living. It is very easy to become satisfied with one's self but not when we look at the white-robed Christ. Here my friends over-estimate my value and my enemies under-estimate my worth; but in the white light of Christ I see myself as I am. Against His whiteness I see my stain; against His purity I see my sin; against His perfection I see my deficiencies.

Anderson's Messages Are Reaching Home; Preaching Old Fashioned Gospel

(By JOHN A. LLOYD)

George Wood Anderson's message is reaching home to the people of Portsmouth. And, no wonder, he is preaching the old-fashioned gospel which has been warning the hearts of men and women for two thousand years. There is simplicity about the services in the big garage which appeals to fair-minded men and women. There is directness, which wins its way to the heart.

Came to Criticize.

They came to criticize, they remained to co-operate. That is the story of more than one person who walked up the driveway into the big garage last night. There were plenty of people who were anxious to knock the meetings, there are plenty yet, but the directness, the common honesty, the absolute sincerity of Evangelist Anderson and his party will convince any fair-minded man or woman that Anderson is all right.

No Fanaticism.

The meetings are most enthusiastic. But there is not a touch of fanaticism about them. Once in a while some good brother will add an "amen" to the sermon, but there is none of that hysterical mania which sometimes accompanies revivals. The men and women who are in charge of this revival know what they are doing. They have a positive message to bring to Portsmouth. They know what they are preaching, and they are very deliberate about the manner in which it is preached.

A Convincing Speaker.

Evangelist Anderson is as convincing a pulpit orator as ever spoke in Portsmouth. He is a master of clear, convincing style. He uses English less than ten per cent of the people who live in Portsmouth here. There's a new usher. The tabernacle looks fine when it's filled. American flags are the best decorations. Serious folk look funny when they hum. There's a wonderful array of talent here. Three song leaders, three composers. Man, what a choir!

The front rows are always filled. Unusual for a church service. The caretaker is called. Someone is sorrowing. Just two other folk left the tabernacle during the service.

George Wood Anderson Works Like Trojan, Master At Word Painting, Says Sheridan

With rivulets of perspiration chasing down his cheeks, with every ounce of energy in play, with his eyes burning like orbs and his jaws snapping like steel traps, Dr. George Wood Anderson held spell bound two wonderful audiences at the New Universal Garage Sunday afternoon and evening, with his matchless eloquence and his scripture backed logic. Put into perfect alignment by the song services, the crowds that packed that flag-bedecked room, broke forth into cheers as the Belle Center, Ohio, divine drove home truths that electrified his hearers. No man, not even the far-famed Billy Sunday, was ever accorded greater orations than given Dr. Anderson on Sunday afternoon and evening. While his sermon in the afternoon on "The White Robed Christ" was a masterpiece, his effort at night when he spoke on "The Love Slave" was without question one of the finest constructed orations ever delivered in this city. Once in a while Dr. Anderson played upon the fancy of his hearers—and he got results—every now and then he dwelt upon patriotism, and he got results. He put his whole life into action, arousing his hearers to the point where they could not remain silent—then a mighty shout of approval swept that big auditorium, causing the bunting to stir itself into action and add its touch of color to the approval of the words of the evangelist.

Each man chooses the taintment with which he in his moral picture clothes the Lord Jesus, and the more of Christ's influence upon his life is determined largely by the garments chosen. All of the taintment mentioned are beautiful and helpful in interpreting various phases of His great character. I love to see Him in dust-covered robes, walking earth's weary way, bringing blossoms of joy to the barren branches of the sin-blighted world. I love to behold Him in the rough carpenter's apron taking His place among the world's toilers, that the world's workers may find their way to God. I love to see Him as the great teacher, imparting the sublime truths of God in such simple language that little children could understand. I love to see Him in His father's house, reading the prophecy and saying: "This day bleeds when I behold Him in the east of robes of cruel mockery, but these garments only give me a partial vision of Jesus."

Disciples Beheld Him.

The disciples had seen Him in several of these garments and yet did not know Him, so that it was necessary for Him to take some of them to the mountain-top where they might behold Him, in the vesture worn while seated upon His Father's throne. With wondering eyes they beheld the transforming of his face and garments until His face did shine as the sun and His garments with a glory exceeding the whiteness of the snow. Beholding Him in the spotless robes of perfect holiness they felt at His feet.

No man can understand Jesus or intelligently interpret Him to others who does not clothe the Master in the white robe of spotless unadorned holiness. Men who clothe Him in other garments confuse Him with other leaders and thus lose the secret of His power. Those who see Him only in dust-stained garments speak of Him as a workman of social service.

He got Him confused with the hen-fatherly speaking of Constantine, Florence, Nightingale, Lombard, Jesus and Francis Assisi. When men clothe Him in the robes of the scholar they group Him with the teachers and philosophers, glibly speaking of Brahmin, Confucius, Plato, Jesus and Aristotle. I have heard ministers who clothed Him in east-of-robust robes like His death to the death of Socrates and Savonarola.

The Son of God.

I follow Christ through the valley but He is always dressed in pure white. He stoops to heal the epileptic lad, He stands among outcasts ministering to lepers. He blesses little children, unstops deaf ears, gives sight to the blind, feeds the hungry, comforts the sorrowing, relieves the distressed, but never once is there any dust in His garments—He is always the Son of God and His garments whiter than the light. I see Him in Gethsemane but the darkness of the night cannot hide the lustre of His robes. I see Him standing before Pilate, but through the colored cloak of scorn His holiness shines in dazzling brilliancy. He is ever the Son of God and when I follow Him to Calvary and behold blood-drops falling from wounded hands and feet and side and brow, their crimson making His robes the whiter. Even the gleam of crucifixion shadows cannot obscure Him, for radiant with light His cross is unlike every other cross for upon it the Son of God is pouring out His life's blood as an eternal atonement for sin. Falling at the foot of that Cross I find pardon.

There can be but one throne for the church and that is the holiness of Christ that condemns sin and points the way to holy living. Others themes may be discussed but only as they throw light upon this the master of all messages. Only the holiness of Christ can condemn sin and inspire righteousness. This is what strong men want. Weaned with other problems they want a divine power to give rest and peace to body, mind and soul. Nothing short of Jesus clothed in white garments can satisfy them. The stronger the men the more they feel the need of a great and mighty Savior. They feel the strong grip of sin, they desire a stronger power to deliver them.

Praise Music.

Too much cannot be said for the music. Song Leader Jenkins ranks with the best of them. Sunday night the big chorus on platform sang in a manner that would threaten the prize of any Elstreeford. Both members of Hall and Mack, who were here yesterday visiting the evangelist party, complimented Jenkins on his great chorus. And those men know music.

Ackley Well Known.

Bentley D. Ackley is an accomplished above reproach. Portsmouth knows Ackley better than any of the other members of the party. Portsmouth knows his hymns, knows his spirit which has sung its way into the hearts of countless thousands. Portsmouth knows that Ackley's presence in the Anderson party is a sure sign that it is a high class organization. Ackley hasn't changed much since the old Billy Sunday days. He is still the same old wonder at the piano. Many a heart was thankful Sunday afternoon to hear him play the climaxes on the big piano. His accompaniments cannot be equalled. He never looks at a piece of music when he is playing it. He even knows the numbers. But, no wonder, he got out the book, and wrote many of the hymns, himself.

There is a splendid spirit about the Anderson meetings, a splendid spirit that is going to put the meetings over in fine style.

Portsmouth is in for a revival such as she has not seen for many, many years.

Everybody Trying To Get In Tabernacle;

Observing Reporter Sees Many Things; Says Front Rows Are Always Filled

(By A. P. Haight)

The largest crowd yet. Everybody seems to be trying to get in. The auditorium looks larger from the southeast corner. The singing starts. Jenkins tries to whisper some instructions to the chorus. The voice can be heard in the back of the house. Folks from Huntington in the audience. There's Sheridan on the back row. Usher whispering during the song service. Will they all get all the announcements.

People, people everywhere, there's

I am not writing these words of commendation just to fill the space allotted me. The fact of the matter is that I would go further if it was humanly possible. The good things I have said about Dr. Anderson and his party are 18 karat true—and I will so testify before any court. People who used to pack that big tabernacle when Billy Sunday held forth ten or more years ago concluded then and there that the baseball evangelist was one of the greatest religious leaders since the time of the Apostle Paul. And I am not trying to diminish the halo of lustre that many have placed around W. A. S. I wouldn't if I could and couldn't if I would. I said many nice things about Mr. Sunday, and I haven't recanted nor do I expect to. And yet, to my way of thinking, Dr. George Wood Anderson stands out like a great light house in a fog, a clean cut, perfect gem, a diadem that shines with the brilliancy of any evangelist I have ever been my good fortune to hear.

He is a man's man—sincere, yet sympathetic; plain but polished; eloquent but natural—he is going to make history in this good old town, and one who is able to keep up the clip that has marked his start. Keeping sensationalism in the background, he is appealing to the nobler attributes of man and pointing out in his own inimitable way the course that should be traveled and which will lead to better things. He's a man with the goods.

Then he carried his hearers across the seas—transported them to the Argentine Woods, where the shot and shell and shrapnel tore many of our boys to pieces and soaked the earth with their life's blood. That he has a heart of love, that he loves his country and her men, that he believes in 100 per cent Americanism was shown by his services over there, when he comforted the dying and consoled the suffering. His descriptive powers are wonderful—he makes you live with him and he carries you on all the journeys he makes.

Earnestness is his chief characteristic. That is stamped on his clean-cut face. His athletic build body sways with emotion—that's because he puts his very life into his messages. True, he would have made a great actor. Had he chosen that profession, there is no question but his name would be blazing forth in electric lights. And he is using that God-given art in his sermons—all that he may more forcibly engrave the truths he utters upon the hearts of his hearers.

AGED PIKETON PHYSICIAN IS KILLED BY N. & W. TRAIN

Drove On The Track While On Way To Patient, Just As Passenger Train Came Along

Dr. Charles H. Wilson of Pike-ton, aged about 63 years, and one of the best known physicians in Pike county, was almost instantly killed Sunday morning about 11:20 o'clock when the Ford coupe in which he was riding was completely demolished by N. & W. passenger train No. 16, the fatal accident occurring at a road crossing just south of Ben's store at Sargeants Station between Wakefield and Pike-ton and near the Barnes' sand and gravel plant. The body of Dr. Wilson was picked up from near the tracks by the train crew and was placed in the baggage car, the crew intending to take him to Hempstead hospital for treatment, but he died a short time after being placed aboard the train.

The physician suffered a fractured skull, broken right jaw, broken right arm above the elbow, broken right collarbone, broken right leg above the knee and crushed ribs. Ribs on both sides were broken and probably caused internal injuries that would have caused death, even had not the skull been fractured. The back of the head was crushed in and part of the skull was probably pressed into the brain.

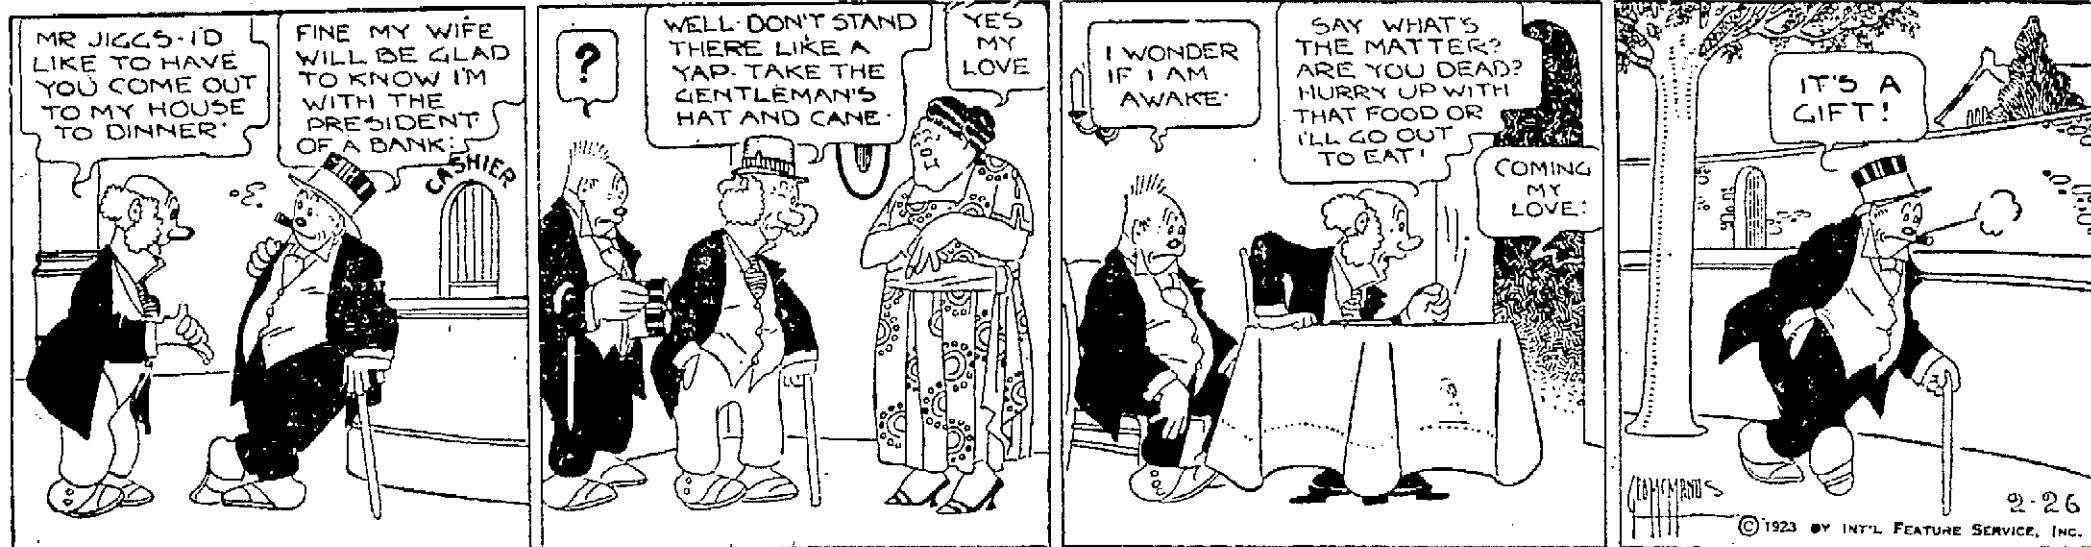

Dr. Wilson was on his way to the William Cutlip home to see a patient when he was killed. The home is on the west side of the N. and W. tracks and a road leads to the Cutlip farm from Scioto Trail. The road turns off from the Trail about three squares south of Ben Kohner's store which is at Sargeants Station. The noise of the auto engine is thought to have drowned out the noise made by the approaching train and the machine was probably on the tracks before Dr. Wilson saw the train coming. The machine was on the left side of the train and could be seen by the fireman, R. Terry, but it turned so quickly onto the road leading across the tracks that it was impossible to check the speed of the train before it struck the machine. The train does not stop at Sargeants and was traveling at a fast rate of speed.

Wreckage Hurled 75 Feet
The wreckage of the Ford coupe was hurled about 75 feet from the track, the machine being reduced to kindling wood. The train traveled some distance before it could be stopped and then was backed up to the scene of the accident, the members of the train crew removing the body of Dr. Wilson from among the wreckage of the machine.

Miss Gladys Daily, who lives on the east side of the Trail almost directly opposite the Cutlip road, was out in the front yard of her home and was an eye witness to the accident. She called her sister, Miss Jane Daily, and they hurried

Boy Goes Skating; Last Seen Of Him

Marjard Jones, aged 14, who resided with his brother, Joseph Jones, of Ninth and Offshore streets, tucked his skates under his arm Saturday afternoon and told his brother he was going skating.

That was the last seen of him. Relatives appealed to the police Monday to institute a search for the missing youth. They are apprehensive that he possibly broke through the ice and was drowned, but hope he has gone to the home of relatives on the West Side. He weighs about 120 pounds, has dark brown hair, blue eyes and wore a dark suit and brown sweater with green cuffs and collar when last seen.

Fire Destroys Duck Run Store And Home

Fire early Sunday morning, which it is believed had its origin in a defective line wiped out the home and general store of J. C. Cryder of Duck Run, West Side. He places his loss at $5,000, partially insured.

When Mr. Cryder was awakened the entire south side of his home was ablaze and he aroused his wife and five children and they had to flee their home in their night apparel and were cared for by neighbors.

The flames spread so rapidly that Mr. Cryder saved only two feather beds from his home and nothing whatever from his store. He sells sewing machines and several were destroyed.

About a year ago his home on Duck Run was wiped out by fire and later he built a combination home and store on the opposite side of the road and it was destroyed Sunday morning.

HOT ASHES START FIRE; AUTO DAMAGED

The companies from two fire stations answered a call shortly before noon Sunday to the home of Albert Graf, 1544 Eleventh street, to extinguish a brisk blaze discovered in the garage at the rear of the house. The fire, which an investigation disclosed, was caused by hot ashes being piled against the garage, and the flames spread to a Buick touring car inside the building, damaging the machine to the extent of about $200 as the top and upholstery were burned away. The damage to the building was slight.

Hazelbeck will insure you.

The hostess accepts with pardonable pride the compliments of her dinner guests. She knows the dignified beauty of her RALEIGH dining room suite shows her good taste. The broken table corners, the shaped aprons of the cabinet pieces and the gad-room ornaments of the baluster-turned legs impart a touch of individuality. Doors, drawer fronts and chair backs embellished with panels of figured walnut veneer. Beautiful two-toned finish. China cabinet, serving hutch, extension table, buffet, five side chairs and arm chair, all TRIPLE GUARANTEE for $425.

SPEED AND ACTION IN "THE FAST MAIL"

In Fact It Is the Slogan For the William Fox Melodrama of Thrills and Adventure

FROM OLD STAGE PLAY

First of Lincoln J. Carter's Famous Thrillers to be Presented On the Screen

"Speed Counts" is the password at the Eastland Theatre this week, for they are showing that old time melodrama, "The Fast Mail," written by Lincoln J. Carter. It is a William Fox presentation and has been directed with a keen eye for thrills by Edward J. Dunning. In the cast are Charles Jones, Lilian Perry and Adolph Menjou.

So fast does the action move that one has a hard time keeping up with the thrills. When the play was first produced on the stage the big scene came when "The Fast Mail" thundered across the stage in the title role. But the camera, handling the theme with a much broader scope, has managed to include, instead of the one thrill, one dare devil stunt after another, until the audience gasps, Charles Jones, who plays the role of the hero, Walter West, claims that he has no nerves, and this picture will surely uphold that statement.

There is action of all sorts. Fast horses, fast boats, fast trains, fast machines, and as a fitting climax to it all, a realistic fire. Through all this storm West wins to success and in the nick of time saves his sweet heart from the burning building. With their troubles past, nothing remains but to live ever after, in their laid fairy tale.

Portsmouth Residents Testify In Pike County Vote Probe

COLUMBUS, O., February 26.—(By the Associated Press)—More stories of the casting of absent voters' ballots were told by witnesses today before the special committee of the house of representatives which is investigating the contest of Harry T. Foster, Republican, for the seat in the house of representatives now held by Robert S. Wynn, Democrat.

Robert Abbott and his wife, Rhoda, of Portsmouth, both of whom had voted in Scioto county in the 1920 election, testified to voting absent voters' ballots for Pike county after being visited by Arthur Herdman and Nick Parker, school teachers of Pike county.

Mabel Abbott, a daughter, also testified to voting an absent voters' ballot. They had lived in Scioto county four years. They said they thought they had a right to vote in Pike county, notwithstanding they had voted two years before in Scioto county, because they owned a farm in Pike county and often went there to work.

Jesse Jackson, Portsmouth, testified that he, his father, Jasou, mother and two sisters all voted personally in Pike county, though Jesse testified that he had registered in Portsmouth in 1920. His brother, F. H. Jackson was the Democratic candidate for county recorder in Pike county, he said. Jackson said he and his family formerly had resided in Pike county and before the recent election he went back there long enough to establish his residence there.

"Where do you expect to vote the next time?" chairman Broadstone asked him.

"Well, that's a pretty big question," Jackson replied.

"You just vote any where, don't you?" the chairman replied.

Edward Kaemmerer, office manager of the Columbus Blank Book Company, testified that Dr. George B. Nye had ordered 500 absent voters' application blanks from his company in September, 1922. He produced copies of the orders. Asked by counsel for Representative Wynn whether other Pike county people had ordered such blanks, Kaemmerer said he did not know. He was ordered to ascertain whether others had ordered. Kaemmerer also stated that federal investigators had examined records of the company in connection with the Nye order.

Levi P. Moore, former prosecuting attorney of Pike county and defeated at the election last November for re-election by George B. Nye, son of Dr. George B. Nye, testified that he had sworn a number of absent voters in making applications for ballots. He, himself, had obtained an absent voters' ballot for a cousin who was ill. Moore said he did not take much interest in the election as he did not want to run for prosecutor again but was induced to do so by friends.

Samuel James, a paroled prisoner from the Penitentiary, now living at New Lexington, denied having ever received a letter from George B. Nye, November 2, concerning having mailed him absent voters' ballots.

On the other hand, he declared, that George B. Nye had told him by letter that he could not vote, as he was only paroled from the penitentiary and had not been restored to citizenship. Judge Blair read a copy of a letter purporting to have been sent to James by Geo. B. Nye concerning the ballots and containing nothing about his not being eligible to vote. James was living with a sister in Columbus when the letter was alleged to have been received. James did not vote the absent voters' ballots.

Russell Skeels, a Columbus detective, was called to the stand to identify the letter which Judge Blair had read, but none recess was taken before his testimony had developed far.

No Clue To Arms' Owner

NEW YORK, February 26.—(By the Associated Press)—Government agents and the police bomb squad, who are seeking the owner of the cache of machine guns, grenades and cartridges found in the basement of a lower west side house last Saturday, today admitted they were baffled. They have learned that Arthur Loewinger, proprietor of a seasonal supply store in Hoboken, N. J., leased the basement recently but he stoutly denies ownership or knowledge of the contraband. No charges have been placed against him.

Joseph O'Byrne, who conducts a rooming house at the address where the machine guns and weapons were located, was still under arrest today with Edward Hoeg, driver of the truck which brought a consignment of 20 cases of cartridge to the cache Saturday.

O'Byrne, according to today's New York World admitted he was a member of the American Association for Recognition of the Irish Republic, but denied any knowledge of the proposed destination of the arms and munitions stored in his basement.

SELECTS AND CANADIAN CHAMPS CLASH HERE TUESDAY NIGHT

Tuesday night in the P. H. S. gym the Baesman Selects, state champions of 1922 and runners-up in the 1923 championship tilt, which closed Saturday night at Urbana, will play the Sensational Wanderers and the champions of Canada. The game will begin at eight o'clock, sharp, and with the admission price at 50 cents a banner crowd should be out to see the two teams mix it up.

The Selects will present their championship lineup with Doll and Edwards, forwards, Baesman, center, and Kent, Brown and Fortner guards.

The Sensational Wanderers who are making a tour of this part of the country have a team of all stars who are looked out of Montreal, Canada, Cicqui and Marcanda play the forward positions with Bauer, an all Canadian star, at center. Bauer is said to be one of the best opponents to ever take the floor against the local captain, Jude Baesman. The guards are DeLorain and Greaves. The New York Celtics, now champions of the world, played the Wanderers to a 31 to 25 score, which means that the Wanderers have a real court outfit. They have been cleaning up on all teams they have met in this state and are coming with the intention of adding the scalp of the Selects.

Captain Baesman is at a big expense in looking this famous team, and it is hoped that a big crowd of fans will turn out to greet the visitors and the locals who carried the colors of Portsmouth to the state tournament.

Connie Mack Can Thank Son Earl For Ed Rommel

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 26.—Connie Mack can thank his son, Earl, for acquiring the services of Eddie Rommel, the pitching sensation of the American League last year.

While it isn't generally known by fandom, Rommel was once the property of the New York Giants and was given the thumbs down by John McGraw.

Rommel, in 1918, had a pretty good year with Newark in the International League. He was purchased by the Giants in an optional deal.

Before the opening of the 1919 season the deal was called off and Rommel reverted to Newark.

Earl Mack, son of Connie, managed Newark that year. He concluded to his dad that Rommel was the most promising youngster in the circuit.

On the recommendation of his son, Connie bought Rommel and has developed him into one of the best pitchers in the majors.

Billy Evans Says

Charley White is the mystery man of the ring.

No fighter in the history of the sport has had a more erratic career than the Chicago lightweight.

The possessor of a fine physique, the ideal build for a fighter, packing a deadly punch in the right hand, able to take punishment and endowed with nature with plenty of courage, White has been the Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde of the ring.

No fighter has been more touted as a champion possibility than White. As a featherweight he was looked upon as a champ. When he outgrew that division without having landed the title, the fight experts immediately began to hand over to him the lightweight laurels.

Fredrick Welsh was the holder of the lightweight title when White was regarded at the top of his game. Welsh, always clever, and a great ring general, never won much fame as a knockout artist. White in those days, as now, "knocked 'em dead" when he hit them on the button, to use the slang of the ring.

It was felt that the first time White got into the same ring with Welsh the title would change hands. White was sure to wear Welsh down, and then slip over the knockout punch, was the view of a majority of the fight experts.

White got the big chance, in fact a couple of chances against Welsh, but failed dismally to make good the many big things that were predicted for him. Welsh, walked around White, gently tapping him as he pleased, and never gave White a single opportunity to put over the sleep-producing wallop.

Benny Leonard won the title from Welsh. In the time White secured a bout with Leonard. He was given an outside chance by the experts. At one stage of the fight he had more than a chance, the championship was within his reach, but he let old opportunity slip away. A few rounds later Leonard knocked him out.

Having worked himself back into the good graces of the promoters by his fine showing in a number of bouts, White was in a position for a second meeting with Leonard. Recently he took a bout with Rocky Kansas to fill in, Kansas, last summer, was stopped by Leonard at Michigan City, Ind.

White figured on disposing of Kansas in a handy fashion and then forcing Leonard into another championship bout. Kansas decisively de-

Bohne Is Holdout

Sammy Bohne, second sacker of the Reds is a full fledged holdout. He says he will not sign his Cincinnati contract unless the figures on it are materially boosted.

White's real trouble is lack of coordination. The mind and the hand that packs the punch constantly clash. He gets an opponent on the ropes and then lets him recover. Coordination would have made White one of the greatest fighters in the history of the ring. Lacking it he continues to remain a mere possibility for championship honors.

Yes, Huntington Is Out Of The Running

The Huntington high basketball five is not making any claims for honors this year. West Virginia, the state high school champion is to be held at Buckhannon next month. Elkins high school is picked to win the state championship honors. Every player on the Elkins team is said to be a giant and win by playing the ball in the air above the heads of their opponents.

Mrs. Bundy Wins

LOS ANGELES, CALIF., February 26.—Mrs. May Sutton Bundy, formerly world's champion woman tennis player, proved she still is one of the country's leading players here yesterday when she defeated Miss Eleanor Goss of New York, in the finals of the women's singles of the Southern California annual mid-winter invitational tournament. 1-4, 6-4, 7-5.

Are Stingy With Their Invitations

Nineteen high school fives have been invited to the high school basketball tournament to be held by Marshall College, March 9 and 10. Gallipolis and Pomeroy are the only Ohio teams invited.

Oh, You Sunny South! Players To Flock There

Players on three National League teams will leave for the Sunny South this week. It hardly seems possible, yet it is true, that the next baseball season is just around the corner.

Within a few days the Reds will be in Orlando, Fla., getting the winter kinks out of their muscles.

P. H. S. To Take Part In Tournament

This week when the P. H. S. boys go to the south-eastern high school basketball tournament at Ohio University, Athens, they will meet only Class A teams instead of some of the teams from smaller villages as they have in past years. This year all the teams entered are divided into two classes, Class A and Class B. The Class B teams are such as Seftonville, South Webster, Picketon, Waverly, Rutland, etc., while the Class A teams will include Portsmouth, Lancaster, Chillicothe, Gallipolis, Ironton and Athens.

The local team leaves Portsmouth Thursday. The tournament is to be played Friday and Saturday with the final coming on Saturday night.

The locals are in the shape and Coach Harry Wagner is sure his team will make a splendid showing in the tournament. There are some fast teams entered and that means that the winner will have to play championship basketball to win first or second place honors.

Same Old Eddie

Eddie Rommel continues to refuse to sign his Cincinnati contract. It is understood that he is demanding $18,000. Last year he received $15,000, his salary not being boosted after he reported to his team in July.

THIS WOULD BE A REAL GAME

HUNTINGTON, W. VA., February 26.—Word comes to this city that a keen rivalry has sprung up between Ashland Kittens basketball team and the team of Ironton high. These two teams have met in two games this year, Ironton winning the first one at Ironton and Ashland winning the contest at Ashland.

Ironton high has sent a challenge to Ashland to come to Ironton the latter part of March for the third game between the two teams. It has been suggested that the game be played on a 50-40 division of the gate receipts and officials at Ironton believe that thousands of people would attend the deciding game.

WIN BOTH GAMES

Saturday night at Huntington the Marshall College quintet won a 28 to 27 victory over the Kentucky Wesleyan five. On Friday night the defeated five won 20 to 23 from Morris-Harvey college.

Blair should and he has his work cut out for him as he must weigh 115 at the ringside or forfeit $100 to Wallers. The latter recently held Jack Perry to a draw.

Murphy Wins Auto Classic; Hangs Up A New Record

LOS ANGELES, CALIF., February 26.—A car's length gave Jimmy Murphy victory in the 250 mile national championship automobile race—the first motor car speed contest of 1923—at the Los Angeles Speedway yesterday and put Bennett Hill in second place.

Hill received only $5,000 and 200 points towards the 1923 championship whereas Murphy, a brief distance ahead at the finish, took $9,000 and 500 points.

Murphy was said to have set a new world's record for the distance, an average speed of 115.65 miles an hour and both Murphy and Hill broke the former record of 114.4 miles an hour set by Murphy on the same course December 3 last. Ralph Delmonico drove more than half of the race in second place, but was forced into the pits with two blown out tires and lost two full laps. But finished third, winning $3,000 and 140 points.

Eddie Hearne was fourth, Frank Elliott, fifth, Tommy Milton, sixth, Dario Resta seventh, Art Kitch, eighth, W. D. Morton, ninth, and Jerry Wonderlich, tenth.

Lexington Coach Takes Team Off Floor

ASHLAND, KY., February 26.—Haltering the game 35 seconds before the close of the final quarter, Coach Downey of the girls quintet of Lexington high school Saturday led his team from the Ashland floor, forfeiting to the "Kittens" by a 2 to 0 score. The score stood 19 to 11 when the game was halted, in favor of the Ashland team.

After the game Coach Downey issued a statement in which he declared that he took his girls from the floor because they were not getting a fair deal. He said that too many points were being called on Lexington, and not enough on Ashland.

Plans To Settle

Down In Reno, Nevada

RENO, NEV., Feb. 26.—When Walter Johnson winds up for the last time he's going to settle down in Reno.

So says E. E. Roberts, father-in-law of the "Kansas Cyclone," and former congressman from Nevada, with whom the world's speed-shall artist has been spending the winter.

Walter corroborated the statement of his wife's father, but smiles about all the talk that the year 1923 will be his last with the Washington Senators.

"I'll admit I've been in the game a long time," he said. "This will be the seventeenth season. Yes, I'm going back again. I haven't signed a contract yet, but the boss wrote me a letter the other day and wanted to know what I needed in the way of an outfit. Guess that means that I'm wanted."

And Walter smiled in the same old way.

"They've treated me pretty fine at Washington and I'm going to play my last game of ball with them," he continued. "Come to think, I've been with Washington a long time. The club has been sold several times and the players have changed a dozen times over. Still there's Ty Cobb and Eddie Collins and a few more who have been in the big leagues longer than I have and still going strong. After living in Washington so long I've come to look at life like the politicians. I'll hang on as long as they'll have me."

Johnson sticks to mother nature to keep him in trim. The days he isn't shooting ducks at Roberts' famous duck pond near Reno he's shooting pheasants at Yerington, geese at Washoe lake or chasing deer over nearby mountain ranges.

IS AN ARTIST HUMAN?

READERS of Broadway chronicles are a trifle surprised at the news that the most recent victim of Cupid, a musical comedy beauty, picked a press agent rather than a millionaire. Her taste may be questioned, since there are innumerable marriageable plumbers, but her scorn of riches and other attractions is not unusual.

Chorus girls who are married to millionaires are as rare as robins in February; that is why such marriages are given a prominent place in the news of the day. As a rule, the chorus girl is married to one of the men with whom she comes in social or professional contact, the stage electrician, the owner of a grocery near her furnished room, a taxi driver.

Chorus girls are human, and very much like other persons. Their disadvantage is that they live in glass houses, and are more closely watched. Sometimes they utilize public attention to increase their prestige artificially. More frequently they conduct themselves as self-respecting wage earners, or they look for new jobs.

Isadora Duncan is a stage girl, who became a temperamental. There is a difference. Now she seems to be trying to live up to the title. She shocked and insulted American audiences, and in Paris has confessed that she married a young Russian in order to allow him to enter America. Now she has packed him back to his native land. These are indications of a disposition that is entitled "temperament." It is a fault rather than an indication of genius. True artists do not have to become intellectual monkeys to be happy. Chorus girls not infrequently are true artists, humbly faithful to the ethics of their profession and the moral standards of respectable people.

THE RED BEAR

FIVE hundred thousand Russians will die from hunger and diseases caused by under-nourishment, this year, before the 1923 crops are harvested.

We get this in a letter from William Garner, former American newspaperman, now connected with the American relief organization in Russia.

Five hundred thousand may seem like a big figure, and it is. But in the autumn of 1921 nearly 24 millions were starving in the Russian famine districts, out of their total population of 42 millions.

In the year that followed, writes Garner, not more than 1,500,000 Russians died from famine. This is the estimate of some of the leading American officials who have been feeding the hungry over there.

American relief broke the backbone of the famine. The lives we saved probably run into the millions. A good job, well done.

One of the greatest handicaps to Russian recovery, says Garner, is that so many horses, cows, sheep and goats, were killed for food. American relief, however, put the brakes on that.

Garner writes: "Russia will not be able to feed its children properly until the cows and goats are brought up to the normal number. And it will not be fully able to take advantage of its available agricultural land until its draft horses are again equal to their pre-war number or replaced by motor cars and tractors."

Garner's report struck us as interesting enough to pass along, especially because it conveys the idea that a lot of the reports from Russia have been exaggerated. He quotes American officials as estimating that the number of Russians actually starving this winter does not exceed 5,000,000. Our charity representatives have the situation in hand about as well as could be expected, both in the matter of food and medical supplies. For one thing, the cholera and typhus epidemics are getting under control.

Garner sums up the general Russian situation by saying that there has been a pronounced change for the better. "The people are as badly clothed as ever. But they seem animated by a more energetic spirit. They have more and more the air of having something to do, whereas a year ago they had the appearance of having nothing to do. . . and nothing to look forward to."

"The change for the better may be noticed in the shop windows, in the fact that the streets are kept cleaner. Railroad service is appreciably better. The street car, the electric lighting and gas systems—in Moscow, at least—are better than a year ago."

The Red Bear, gaunt and weak, but with renewed interest in life and a desire to do, is slowly emerging from his den. Recovery will be slow. But it's started—according to Garner.

Some alleged prehistoric writing has been found in California, but it may be merely some indecipherable penmanship.

New York=Day=By=Day

BY O. O. McINTIRE

NEW YORK, February 26.—A page from the diary of a modern Samuel Pepys: "Up betimes to cast my accounts, a dreary business, and thence to the book-sellers to buy a volume or so against my fit of loneliness."

Home where Meredith Nicholson came and a hearty breakfast at an inn, permitting him, as is my custom, to pay the reckoning. Came this day six fine silk shirts, a noble gift from Carl Seitz in Shanghai.

All the afternoon fashioning a piece and then in despair tore it up and, like Samuel Blythe, believe writing is the most thankless and disheartening labour there is. Yet I know of nothing else I would as lief try to do.

To dinner with Ewing Galloway, the photographer, and C. Phelps Cushing there, all very merry. And at midnight to the stage of the Empire to the supper Billie Burke gave, and she as lovely as ever. And so home again and to bed.

The heavy tenors who go the round of Italian cafes at night to sing to patrons their ear-splitting arias are selected usually from the East Side barber shops.

Their routine duties by day may be drab, but when the lights come on each is a potential Curuso. Indeed, they affect the Curuso gait and dress—carried military fashion, green hat tilted to the side audaciously, and lemon colored gloves.

Some have four and five engagements an evening and are paid $2 a song. There are others whose vocal powers are not so powerful who merely sing for their dinner. But the hand-clappings and applause of the multitude are theirs.

Boze Bulger tells of a young negro undergoing a physical examination for life insurance. He was questioned by the doctor, who was filling out the blank.

"Do you use wine, spirits, or malt liquors?" the doctor asked.

"Sir, I am a bill collector."

"Then I can furnish you with one of the most choice collections in the world, all authentic. I thought you were after money."

By some caprice of fate I never wear a new necktie without absent-mindedly going out for breakfast and ordering grape fruit. That is bad enough, but the other morning I ran into a friend who had even worse luck. He was wearing a new fancy vest for the first time. He stopped to show me a new self-filling pen and the pen suddenly unfilled all over the vest.

I admired the spunk of a fashionably dressed woman driving through Forty-Sixth street in a taxicab. She saw the motor jump from 50 cents to $1.20, stopped the cab, called a policeman, and, with him, escorted the driver to the nearest police station to press the charge against the offender.

New York is indeed a big city. I know a novelist who came here in quest of the best plays first and found no seats. Then he became obsessed with the idea that he must see a play and wound up at a movie show in the peaceful confines of Red Bank, N. J.

Polish Up the Dark Side
Is life a fret and tangle,
And everything goes wrong?
Are friends a bit disloyal,
And enemies too strong?
Is there no bright side showing?
Then—as a sage hath said—
"Polish up the dark side,
And look at that instead."

The darkest plank of oak will show
Sometimes the finest grain.
The roughest rock will sometimes yield.

The gleaming golden vein:
Don't fall at fate, declaring
That no brightness shows ahead,
But "polish up the dark side,
And look at that instead."

An Era of Publicity
"You don't mind having the name of your automobile painted in box-car letters on the cover?"
"No," said the motorist, "although it's true that I'm a rolling advertisement for the manufacturer who made it, but I have to draw the line somewhere. If my tailor ever asks me to wear his label where all who run may read, I'm going to refuse."

A Natural Choice
The motor car had skidded on the wet road and upset. An Irishman came up and said to a friend in the crowd, "What's the excitement, Pat?"
"Shure, it's an automobile that's turned turtle."
"Turned turtle, is it?" said the newcomer. "Bedad, that must be the reason it chose a mud puddle."
